proposal is to have a day taken out from the calendar, when everyone could do what they had no time for through the year, to have a day to catch up with ourselves.

As an international holiday, a day off for everybody, when one doesn't have to go to work, the planes stay on the ground, the stock market has a halt, even the diseases stop doing their dirty business, the day when no one dies (this is the science fiction part).

Obviously it would be practical to have this day on the 29th of February as the leap day is the day when the calendar catches up on itself, but I find one day in four years too little to do whatever I didn't have time for, so now I declare the 5th of November the day when the world stand still.

Let's see what my teammates would do on this very special day:

Michael Jackson has visited Hungary three times, all three times when he has been here in Hungary, he stayed at the Kempinski Hotel on Erzsébet Square. Right on the corner of the square stands a western whip tree (Celtis occidentalis), which has become a popular place of remembrance and meeting for young people. Fans plant flowers around the base of the tree every year, and the trunk is also decorated with countless pictures and plate covers. The tree and the pictures on it have been taken care of by an elderly retired lady for ten years. According to her, she does not spend on drinks and cigarettes from her HUF 62,000 pension, she only spends HUF 500/1000 on replacing pictures stolen from the tree. The memorial tree has never officially received a land use permit from the competent authorities, it is rather a kind of tolerated illegal riot memorial. So what if there was a memory tree for neverland kids too egyre szürealisabbnak érezzük, ahogy az emberek a közterületeiket felparcellázák és nehéz anyagú szobraikkal áraszák el azt. a nehéz szobrok kiszorítják egyre inkább a levegőt a térről.

legyen az emlékezésünk újra könnyed, akár november ötödike! mi is történt akkor? semmi? lehet mivel nem csináltál semmit? lehet hogy nem is történt semmi?

legyen az emlékezés könnyed, használjuk úgy a tereinket mint a tinédzserek, és mint az idős néni, aki készített egy Michael Jackson fát.

legyen az emlékezésünk egy gesztus, egy mozdulat, nehéz kövek helyett teret engedve az embernek.

People parcel up the public space and flood it with massive sculptures, it feels more and more surreal. The heavy objects take up the space leaving less and less air.

Make remembrance light again, as the 5th of November! What has happened that day? Nothing? Maybe you didn't do anything? Maybe nothing did happen?

Make remembrance light, use our squares as the teenagers, and as like the old lady who decorated the Michael Jackson tree.

Make our remembrance a gesture, leaving some room for the people instead of the heavy stones.

Guy Fawkes Night

From Wikipedia, the free encyclopedia

Guy Fawkes Night is an annual commemoration observed on 5 November in the United Kingdom and 505 O.S., when Guy Fawkes, a member of the Gunpowder Plot, was arrested while guarding explosives the plotters had placed beneath the House of Lords. Celebrating the fact that King James I had survived the attempt on his life, people lit bonfires around London; and months later, the introduction of the Observance of 5th November Act enforced an annual public day of thanksgiving for the king's survival.

Within a few decades Gunpowder Treason Day, as it was known, became the predominant English state commemoration, but as it carried strong Protestant religious overtones it also became a focus for anti-Catholic sentiment. Puritans delivered sermons regarding the perceived dangers of popery while during increasingly raucous celebrations common folk burnt effigies of popular hate-figures, such as the pope. Towards the end of the 18th century reports appear of children begging for money with effigies of Guy Fawkes and 5 November gradually became known as Guy Fawkes Day. Towns such as Lewes and Guildford were in the 19th century scenes of increasingly violent class-based confrontations, fostering traditions of celebrating still, albeit increasingly in the 1850s changing attitudes resulted in the fading down of much of the day's anti-Catholic rhetoric, and the celebration of Guy Fawkes Day gradually Settled in the British Empire and its overseas colonies, including some in North America, where it was known as Pope Day. Those festivities died out with the onset of the American Revolution. Claims that Guy Fawkes Night is a replacement for older customs like Samhain are disputed, although another old celebration, Halloween, has lately increased in popularity in England, and according to some sources is now the most widely observed of 5 November.
